TANK BOMBERS RAID TOKYO, JAPS SAY

Canadian Troops Land On Walcheren Island

ALLIES SEEK TO SUBDU GERMAN GUNS ON COAST

Nazi Cannons Still Have Control Over Approaches To Antwerp Port

RUN RETREAT GOES ON

Russian Forces Press To Within 13 Miles Of Hungarian Capital

By International News Service
Canadian army landings on the Dutch island of Walcheren aimed at subduing the big German coastal guns which still control the approaches to Antwerp were reported by the German high command today coincident with headquarters announcements of a continued Nazi retreat across the Maas.

Allied landings have been carried out near Flushing, the one-time Dutch naval base taken over by the Germans. A German communiqué said:

"This morning the enemy landed in the area of Vlissingen (Flushing) supported by naval units. There is heavy fighting for the town and harbor."

The German Transoceanic Agency asserted that the attack "was made with numerous assault and amphibious tanks."

Fortifications Shelled

"The shelling of German fortifications in the Flushing area had increased to very great power during the night," Transoceanic continued.

"After further heavy bombardments the British and Canadians began their landing operations at dawn."

"The struggle for the Scheldt estuary has thus entered its final phase."

Allied occupation of Flushing will enable Antwerp to be opened as a supply and reinforcement port close to the Allied lines at the German frontier. The town was the birthplace and naval base of famous Dutch Admiral De Ruyter, who in the 17th century sent Holland's fleet up the Thames almost into the heart of London, and set fire to King Charles II's flagship.

In southwestern Holland, there were indications that the German high command had decided to continue the general Nazi retreat back over the Waal branch of the Rhine.

Retreat Continued

The Germans dropped back in a steady stream, crossing the Maas over bridges and in ferries, as British, Canadian, American, and Polish troops slashed forward to batter the enemy's route of retreat.

The Nazis also were being pushed back along the eastern side of (Continued on Page Two)

STILWELL CASE LONG ON FIRE

Request For Removal From China Made Two Months Ago By Chiang

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—White House advisers revealed today that the demands for removal of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell from the China command was made as long as two months ago, and was presented to President Roosevelt at the White House by H. H. Kung, vice president of the executive Yuan of China, who has been in Washington since last summer.

It was disclosed that President Roosevelt, before acquiescing to the demand, warned Kung that withdrawal of Stilwell would not be a cure-all of the troubles in China, and should be followed by drastic action "to put your military house in order."

Disclosure of these facts made it clear that Generalissimo Chiang Kuo Shek was by-passing his ambassador in Washington, Dr. Wei Tao-Ming, and working directly through Kung. It was believed that Ambassador Wei was not fully informed of the Stilwell controversy until after it became the subject of general rumor.

ITALIANS NOT SUPERSTITIOUS OF DEUCE BILL

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—The much-maligned American $2 bill, regarded as a symbol of bad luck in this country, is eagerly sought in Italy, the Uruguayan delegate to the forthcoming international business conference at Rye, N. Y., disclosed today.

The delegate, Carlomagno Aguiñetti, said when Hitler flooded Italy with counterfeit U. S. currency, the superstitious fuhrer had his printers lay off $2 greenbacks.

VOTERS OF FIVE STATES IN EAST HOLD SPOTLIGHT

Group On Doubtful List And May Go Either Way Next Tuesday

POLITICOS CONCERNED

Total Of 114 Electoral Votes Involved Out Of Required 266

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—Highly political leaders in both parties generally believe today that the voters in five eastern states, topped by New York, hold the balance of power to determine the presidential race between President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Politicos concede that a clean sweep of the five states by either nominee will give them victory next Tuesday. The states are New York with 47 electoral votes, Pennsylvania with 35, Massachusetts with 16, Connecticut with eight and Maryland with eight for a grand total of 114 electoral votes. The winner needs 266.

Special emphasis was placed on these five states because all are classed in the doubtful column and might go either way. Surveys by top leaders in both parties place eighteen states in the Roosevelt column, eighteen others in the Dewey column and leave seven—beside the five key eastern states—in the doubtful column—claimed by both parties.

South Concede

Republicans conceded the solid south and Tennessee to Mr. Roosevelt for a total of 127 electoral votes. There is only scattered Republican protest against Democratic claims to Arizona, California, Montana, Nevada, Utah, Washington and Rhode Island, which added to the south would give the President a total of 179 electoral votes. Some Republicans still think California will go for Dewey, but registration figures are against them. Montana, Utah and Nevada are still battle-grounds with the Republicans likely to elect their governors in the first two and possibly a senator in the third, though Roosevelt is a favorite to carry them in the presidential contest.

Dewey is a heavy favorite today to carry Maine, Vermont, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Idaho, North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Missouri and West Virginia in the border states. This would give him a total of 197 electoral votes. Some Democrats, however, believe the great Democratic pluralities in Chicago and Detroit will swing Illinois and Michigan into Roosevelt's column.

Aside from the five "key states" in the East both parties claim the border states of Kentucky and Oklahoma, New Hampshire, Delaware, Wyoming, New Mexico and Oregon, with a total of 41 electoral votes.

The importance of the five eastern key states—if Dewey actually is assured of 197 electoral votes—is that he can win the presidency by carrying New York and Pennsylvania. (Continued on Page Two)

HENRIETTA CROSMAN OF THEATRICAL FAME DIES

PELHAM MANOR, N. Y., Nov. 1—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Miss Henrietta Crosman, stage star for 40 years and more recently portrayed of "Grande Dame" roles in Hollywood films, who died yesterday. She was 79.

Miss Crosman achieved stage stardom in 1900 as Nell Gwynn in "Miss Nell." She was famous earlier as leading lady of the Park Theatre stock company in Boston. During her heyday she appeared with such contemporaries as E. H. Sothern, Effie Shannon, Otis Harlan and May Robson.

YANKS IN ACTION AFTER INVASION OF LEYTE

MOVING UP ON THE ENEMY, these men of the U. S. 96th Division are shown fighting their way through the wreckage of a native village on the island of Leyte, following the spectacular invasion of the Central Philippines. The land forces moved rapidly toward the big airbase, blazing their way through one village after another until the Japs had been driven into the wild hills to the north and west. They have taken most of Leyte and now hold virtually all of the island of Samar to the North, across a narrow strait from Luzon. (International Soundphoto)

TWO KEY TALKS LEFT FOR FDR

To Address Nation From White House Thursday And Boston Saturday

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—President Roosevelt will stand for a fourth term on the record of his administrations in peace and in war, his plans as commander-in-chief for final victory against Germany and Japan, and his blueprint for a prosperous national economy and a world security organization as outlined in seven major campaign speeches.

In the home stretch of the campaign before voters of the nation go to the polls next Tuesday, the chief executive will make only two more key-wide addresses to windup his re-election bid.

One will be made from the White House Thursday night. The second will follow in Boston Saturday night at a huge outdoor rally in Fenway park, home of the Boston Red Sox.

His final campaign speech—a far briefer one than his major addresses—will be made on election eve at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., near his Hyde Park estate, in a Democratic national committee hour "get-out-the-vote" nationwide broadcast.

He will fill in between the final key campaign speeches with brief extemporaneous talks during a train and motor tour of southern New England, while enroute to his Boston Saturday, and during a motor tour the following Monday of the villages near his Hudson valley home.

Thus far, beginning with his address to the Teamsters' union at the Statler hotel in Washington a month ago, Mr. Roosevelt has made major addresses on labor, getting-out-the-vote, foreign policy and the world peace organization, his role as commander-in-chief. (Continued on Page Two)

Dewey Says Record Of FDR is One of Broken And Bogus Promises

ABOARD DEWEY CAMPAIGN TRAIN ENROUTE TO BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 1—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey moved into Massachusetts today for a slashing attack on alleged Communistic influence in the Roosevelt administration, after labeling the President's record as one of "broken and bogus promises" which makes "worthless" his campaign pledge of sixty million peace-time jobs.

As the Republican presidential nominee began his drive for Massachusetts' 16 electoral votes in the industrial cities of Pittsfield, Springfield and Worcester, it was announced that his Boston speech tonight will deal with "subversive elements who now seek to take over the country."

He also will discuss further his charge at Chicago that President Roosevelt sponsored an idea by which 1,000 persons were to be asked to contribute, $1,000 each to the Democratic campaign fund in return for "special privilege."

To Discuss Club

"The governor will discuss in Boston," said Paul Lockwood, Mr. Dewey's secretary, "the question of who will out-bid the One Thousand Club for control of the captive Democratic party. He will talk about the subversive elements who now seek to take over the country. He also will outline the principles by which we must live if we are to be free."

Gov. Dewey came directly to Massachusetts from Buffalo where, in addition to accusing President Roosevelt of broken promises, he outlined last night an eight-point post-war prosperity program which, he said, will restore the old American ideal that there is "room for everyone to get ahead." In his Buffalo talk, the GOP nominee:

1—Promised to lift from the back of business, large and small, the burden of filing countless governmental reports.

2—Pledged the appointment of a competent staff of prosecutors in the department of justice who will end business monopoly "instead of just talking about it."

Would Limit Terms

3—Gave unqualified indorsement to a constitutional amendment limiting future presidents to two terms.

4—Accused President Roosevelt of trying to win the election by promising to "reverse the course of everything he had done for 12 years."

5—Charged the Roosevelt administration with "allowing drowning" American businessmen with a "rising flood of rules and regulations, questionnaires, reports and directives."

6—Asserted that in 1942 and 1943, the wartime prosperity years of the present administration, 500,000 small businesses were forced to close their doors.

7—Declared that in every administration Mr. Roosevelt has headed "he ended up in the red."

8—Stated that the President, after 12 years in office, "felt compelled to announce as news" last Saturday that he believes in the enterprise system.

9—Charged that Mr. Roosevelt, constantly at war with congress, put America first above all else. (Continued on Page Two)

HATRED OF JAPS NOT TO DIE OUT

All Filipinos Now Ask Of Life Is Opportunity To Kill Nips

A SEVENTH DIVISION POST, LEYTE, Nov. 1—Hatred of the Japs in the Philippines will not end when the war is over, it may last for 100 years, Lieut. Joseph F. St. John, the courageous army signal corps officer who spent two and a half years as a guerrilla leader on Leyte and Mindanao, said today.

"All of the Filipino guerrillas want to go to Tokyo," he declared, "and it will be too bad for Tokyo if they do. All they want in life now is to kill Japs. I never saw such hatred."

St. John pointed out that the work of the guerrillas was effective, especially in killing Japs.

"They've killed about 3,000 on this island and the Japs are scared of them," he said. "Of course, they'd never admit it—the Japs say the guerrillas do not bother them—but they say it too often. They always talk of guerrillas. If I were a Jap I wouldn't set foot on any Philippine island for the next 100 years and the hatred may not be over by then."

"A fellow who escaped from Manila told me all about the time the Japs got my radio and almost killed me. He even knew that some of my hair was shot away. He said everybody in Manila knew about it except the Japs."

"The Filipinos have many ways of showing their sympathy, even though they are forbidden to talk to Americans. One way is to make the V for victory finger sign when taking a cigarette out of their mouth."

WILL ROGERS PREFERS FDR TO TOM DEWEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 1—Will Rogers, Jr., former congressman and son of the famed humorist and now fighting in the tank destroyers on the Holland front is supporting President Roosevelt, Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic national committee disclosed today.

Hannegan made public a telegram Mrs. Will Rogers, Jr., received from her husband which read in part:

"Will you please wire my friend, President Roosevelt that I have just been astounded to hear that my newspaper back in the states printed an editorial indorsing Dewey. This was done absolutely without my knowledge or consent and to attribute such indorsement to me is utterly fantastic and absurd."

INDUSTRY AREA OF CAPITAL IS ATTACK TARGET

Air Assault First Since Historic Doolittle Visit In April Of 1942

CONFIRMATION LACKING

Nip Radio Admits Some Of Workers "Lost Their Calmness"

By International News Service
A mid-day air raid on Tokyo and Yokohama by "several" American B-29 Superfortresses apparently operating out of the Marianas was reported today by Tokyo radio in a series of confused and often conflicting broadcasts.

The strictly-controlled transmitter declared that "several enemy B-29s flew over Tokyo and Yokohama for about a half hour" after asserting a few hours earlier that a lone Superfortress dropped bombs on the Kanto industrial area of the Nipponese capital.

Factory workers in Kanto were thrown into confusion by the raids it was reported and there were indications the target area was set ablaze.

The admission of the bombardment was made in a broadcast several hours after the Tokyo transmitter reported the presence of American four-motored craft in the vicinity of the Nipponese capital and Jap "eastern defense authorities" were quoted as saying one B-29 Superfortress had carried out a sortie over the city.

The raid, according to the Jap announcement, was made against part of the Kanto region, important industrial area on the south-eastern side of metropolitan Tokyo.

First Since 1942

The raid, Tokyo said, caused the first real alert in the Jap capital since the historic "Doolittle raid" on April 18, 1942, when American planes carried out their first assault from the skies on Nippon's first city.

The broadcast stating that an actual raid had taken place quoted an announcement of "air defense central headquarters" concerning an "enemy raid" on the Tokyo-Yokohama region.

Reception on the latest of a series of announcements concerning American air action over the Tokyo area at 1 a. m. today was extremely bad, FCC monitors reported, and a rendition of the full text of the statement revealed an actual bombardment was impossible.

At several points, however, parts of the Tokyo transmission which the monitors were able to pick up indicated that the assault had created some confusion among factory workers in the target area.

Loss Calmness

"Some of the factory workers lost their calmness," radio Tokyo's announcer said.

The possibility that large blazes were started was seen in a later statement in which the announcer was believed to have said:

"If one follows instructions, he will be able to put out the fire easily." These words may have been uttered, however, in connection with air raid precaution instructions which it appeared were being issued subsequent to a warning that further heavier raids could be expected.

Planes Reported

Several four-motored American planes were reported in early Tokyo radio broadcasts and wireless transmissions by the Dowd agency to have flown over the Nipponese capital.

The United States 20th Bomber Command gave no immediate confirmation of any B-29 Superfortress operation over Tokyo, nor were the Japs reports substantiated by any other Allied source.

The announcement concerning the flight of the B-29 over the capital said that the Superfortress was "greeted by a barrage from ground installations" and asserted that Japanese fighter planes pursued and abounded. (Continued on Page Two)

sued it as it "fled to the southeast without inflicting any damage."

"The plane is believed to have come from an American base in the Marianas," Tokyo said.

In early reports of purported American aerial operations in the vicinity of the capital Radio Tokyo asserted that fighters rose to meet the Yank craft and that "the enemy planes immediately flew from our fighters."

The Japanese came up with another announcement that also was unconfirmed by Allied sources. They said that a so-called "death-defying corps" had effected a landing on Peleliu island to counter the month - old American invasion there.

Peleliu, in the Palau group east of Mindanao in the Philippines and southeast of Leyte island, was attacked at dawn, according to a Japanese communique that also claimed four American transports were sunk and two damaged east of the island by Japanese torpedo boats.

In the Philippines, General MacArthur sounded the death knell for the enemy defenders of Leyte island. American carrier planes and torpedo craft, ranging between Leyte and Cebu, sank 22 Japanese barges and have made reinforcement of the island virtually impossible, the general said.

Ground forces on Leyte moved steadily ahead. One force was within eight miles of the island's west coast. Another mopped up Japanese pillboxes in the Dagami sector and killed between 1500 and 2000 enemy troops.

From Pearl Harbor came word that Japan's aircraft loss during the past two months mounted higher than that nation's plane production capacity. The American Third and Seventh Fleet air arms, during September and October, destroyed 2994 enemy planes and probably destroyed or damaged an additional 252, according to American Pacific fleet authorities.

BUSY HALLOWEEN IS REPORTED BY CITY'S FIREMEN

Circleville firemen answered five calls Tuesday afternoon and evening but no serious damage was reported at any of the blazes.

The first trip was to prevent a fire. A long distance call from Chillicothe from an excited North Court street resident informed firemen she had gone away and left a fire burning under beans cooking on her stove. She asked firemen to go to her home and turn out the fire. They entered the home through a window which she told them was open.

At 7 p. m. firemen extinguished a fire at the residence of Fritz Sievert, North Pickaway street, where window blinds and curtains ignited from a Halloween candle. Damage was estimated at $20.

A grass fire on Huston street was reported at 8:10 p. m. and at 8:25 p. m. firemen were called to Watt and Pickaway street but found no fire. A false alarm at 11:50 p. m. to Half avenue and Clinton street wound up the busy session.

ALLIES SEEK TO SUBDU GERMAN GUNS ON COAST

the Allied salient through the Netherlands and were driven out of the town of Liesel, northwest of Meijel.

Heavy fighting was said to be raging in the vicinity of Liesel which the enemy previously had regained in futile counter-attacks in the hope of checking the Allied Maas river drive.

Liesel was retaken by British Army troops.

In the Scheldt pocket, on the mainland to the south, the Germans were pulling back into two remaining coastal fortresses.

Orderly Retreat
Headquarters said that although the Germans were moving back across the Maas in a steady stream, the withdrawal still was orderly and did not constitute a rout.

On the Northern Italian front, Yanks of the American Fifth Army inflicted heavy losses upon the Germans and repelled a series of fierce counter-attacks south of Bologna. Troops of the British Eighth Army, in the Adriatic sector, widened their bridgeheads across the Ronco river.

In Rome, Allied headquarters also revealed British forces reached the Greek port at Salonika, 190 miles northwest of Athens.

Russ Press Ahead

On the eastern front, Russian forces pressed to within 43 miles of the Hungarian capital at Budapest. Surging up from the south-east, the Soviets took the town of Izask and fought through the streets of Keackemet, only sizeable city left between the advancing Russians and the city of Budapest. Still another Red Army contingent pressed against Budapest from the northeast, taking the town of Nyregyhaza some 120 miles from the Hungarian capital.

Allied air forces also maintained the drum-beat pace of pounding the Nazis. After another heavy raid during the night, the shattered German industrial city of Cologne staggered under 10,000 tons of explosives showered down upon it within the last four days. Taking advantage of improved weather, aircraft of the Mediterranean force hammered behind the enemy lines in north Italy and attacked strategic targets in the Balkans.

JOHN F. MIESSE DIES IN PLANE CRASH IN INDIA

Lieut. Miesse had been in India since last May and had flown several missions into China. The last letter received by his parents from him was dated September 15. He was attached to the 20th Bomber Command.

In addition to his parents, Lieut. "already has undertaken to insult the new leadership" by accusing them of placing political advantage above devotion to country, "just because they publicly pledged themselves to a program of lasting peace."

Speech on Air

In his Boston speech tonight, which will be broadcast nationally from 9:30 to 10 p. m. (EWT), Gov. Dewey also may single out for attack Sen. Harry Truman, Democratic vice-presidential nominee, who preceded him into New England.

An audience of 20,000 cheered and stamped at Buffalo when the Republican nominee repeatedly assailed the Roosevelt promises as "worthless, though they be repeated again and again and again."

Recognizing the phrase as one taken from President Roosevelt's 1940 campaign promise that American troops would not be required to fight abroad, the crowd anticipated each reiteration of the words "again and again and again." They greeted Mr. Dewey with a mass chant of "It's time for a change."

HIGH STREET PUPILS STAGE HOLIDAY PARTY

Hallowe'en in its finest tradition was enjoyed Tuesday afternoon when pupils of the High Street School shared their annual masquerade party with residents of the neighborhood and the downtown district. In gay and colorful costumes, more than 200 youngsters, some accompanied by smaller fry from their homes, staged a grand march around the East High Court Watt and North Pickaway block during the recess period of the school.

Headed by two masked pupils carrying a placard plugging for the three-mill school levy, the long line of march included pirates, witches, skeletons, lovely ladies, comic strip characters, black mamies, all kinds of adult costumes and a few colonial dames. All were wearing cleverly designed masks made in the school rooms.

Before leaving the building, the pupils marched through the gayly decorated class rooms, enjoying the effects planned by east group of the school. Hallowe'en colors and Jack-o'-Lanterns predominated in the arrangements.

Light refreshments were served, the lunch being appropriate to the season.

The children were assisted in planning the party by the teachers at the school, including Mrs. Margaret Mills, Miss Doris Schreiner, Mrs. Polly Tilton, Miss Eloise Hilliard, Mrs. Dwight Weiler and Miss Sophia Parks, who accompanied them on the parade around the square.

Despite the fact that the school building is the oldest in the city, the district is one of the most progressive in its plans for the children, and in the lively teacher-pupil relationship, is at its best in the annual observance of each holiday of the year.

The delay in taking action on the demand for Stilwell's removal was explained by two factors—the President's reluctance to take the action, and also the absence from Washington during part of this period of Chief of Staff General George C. Marshall.

Or, he can lose New York and win by carrying Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Maryland and one of the three-vote states such as New Hampshire, Delaware or Wyoming.

Indeed, Dewey can win by carrying the five eastern key states, even if he loses both Illinois and Michigan out of his midwestern territory.

PEACE PROBLEMS ARE DISCUSSED BY CHURCHMEN

Peace problems were discussed Tuesday afternoon and evening in St. Philip's Episcopal church here at the peace conference sponsored by the Ohio Council of Churches.

In the afternoon Rev. R. E. Dronsfield, pastor of the Oakland Park Presbyterian church, Columbus, opened the meeting with a talk on the history of the peace movement. "What Kind of a World Do We Want," was the subject of the Rev. L. C. Morehead, Indianapolis Methodist church, Columbus. Rev. W. A. Milne, First Methodist church, Columbus talked on "What About Sovereignty in World Government."

"Social and Religious Hopes of the World We Live In" was the subject of Rev. Milne at the evening session. Rev. Dronsfield used as his subject "What Can the Church Do About It." General discussion followed the talks.

'The Spokesman of the Future'
The 1944 campaign motion picture, "The Spokesman of the Future" is scheduled to be shown throughout the afternoon and evening, Thursday, November 2, at the Pickaway County Republican Campaign Headquarters in Circleville, under the auspices of the G. O. P. Booster's Club of Pickaway County.
The picture opens with some beautiful scenes of the White House and Washington. This sequence carries us into some scenes of the New York skyline, then to the streets of New York, and from there to Dewey being sworn in as governor of New York State by Judge Lehman. Following this are a few scenes of Dewey's racket-busting days foretelling what he was to do as Governor.
There are some agricultural scenes that are suitably expressed in text and also some production scenes of workers in connection with his improvements of the Worker's Compensation Act.
There are a few scenes reminding all of us of his efforts in connection with the U. S. O. From there the picture goes to scenes of the Governor at the Mackinac Conference, to the convention where he was nominated for the Presidency and thence, to the Governors' Conference in St. Louis. There are also attractive scenes where he and Mrs. Dewey were host to Governor and Mrs. Bricker at the executive mansion in Albany, N. Y.
In between the foregoing scenes is a sequence of the Dewey family in Pawling and the Governor with his mother in Owosso, Michigan.
The picture is in sound and of twelve-minute duration.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND
By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Most Americans have been so engrossed in the World War that if you told them war was brewing right here in the Western Hemisphere, they never would believe it.

Yet buzzing backstage in the Washington diplomatic corps has been a growing, worrying reverberation over the ultimate danger of war between Argentina and Chile—not this year, perhaps not next year, but before very long.

Additional attention was focused on the unhappy situation with Argentina's bid for a conference of Pan-American foreign ministers—on an obvious move to put the U. S. A. on the spot and force recognition of the Fascist Farrell militarist government in Argentina.

The whole tangled diplomatic controversy between Argentina, the United States and other neighbors is so involved that it takes an expert to understand it. But out of the mess emerges these basic and alarming facts:

1—Argentina is rushing armament. Hedy Lamarr's former husband, Fritz Mandel, the Austrian munitions king, about whom "Idiot's Delight" was written, is busy building airplanes for Argentina night and day.

2—Argentina could bomb Santiago, capital of Chile, from Mendoza, just across the Andes, in 40 minutes. It would take five hours for Chile to bomb Buenos Aires, capital of Argentina.

3—The people of Chile today are worried sick over Argentina. The Socialist, Communist and Conservative parties, usually vigorously divergent, are now united on this. They fear that the Argentine Fascists, looking for means of keeping themselves in power, as Hitler did with the German people, will make a Czechoslovakia out of Chile.

BRAZILIANS ADMIRE ARGENTINA

Other Latin Americans are divided. Paraguay, Bolivia, Peru sympathize with Argentina. Officially Brazil does not. But actually the Brazilian Army, plus many of the Brazilian people, are rooting sympathetically for the one country south of the Rio Grande which has successfully thumbed its nose at the Colossus of the North and got away with it.

Nothing succeeds like success, especially in the Latin American mind. The State Department adopted only halfway measures with Argentina; snubbed her diplomatically, but made her prosperous economically by continuing to buy meat. The Argentines didn't care much if they were snubbed as long as they were prosperous.

Result is that many "good neighbors," though not liking Argentine Fascism, enjoy seeing U. S. Diplomacy come to grief.

NOTE—Meanwhile, the United States is less equipped to handle things in our own hemisphere than ever before in two decades. Secretary Hull is sick. His best Latin American experts were friends of Sumner Welles and were given the gate after Welles resigned.

PROFESSOR NEVER FINISHED GRADE SCHOOL

DIET AND HEALTH
An Unsung Victory
The Advance in Civilian Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

ONE OF THE greatest of victories in the present war has not made the headlines to any extent. It has been a quiet battle, conducted behind the lines by an army of unsung heroes who never get decorated but continuously and unrelentingly and with great intelligence and all the resources of modern science conducted the campaign for public health for the civilian population.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It appears to have come as a surprise to publicists and newspaper editorial writers whenever the news from this campaign did reach status to be worthy of a column or two of new print, that the health of the general population has been better during the war than it was in some of the piping times of peace. It is true that we have had a worse epidemic of infantile paralysis this year than we had for many years, but that is because we simply and sadly have to confess ignorance as to how that contagion is spread. Until we do know, the situation will get no better, except for the natural fluctuations of the disease.

Public Health Improved

But in spite of rationing and travel restrictions, or perhaps partly because of those necessary impositions, in spite of the tension and tenseness of life, in spite of the enormous amount of attention paid to the health of the members of the armed forces our civil population has remained in wonderful health. Infant mortality is down, there is no, or little typhoid, school children diseases are at a minimum and the death rate everywhere in civil life is down.

For all this, due credit should be given to the public health administration, federal, state, county and city, all over the land.

It has been wondered why in this war the Italian troops were not better warriors and the theory has been advanced that they as well as the rest of the Italian population are physically weakened and deteriorated by the inroads of malaria in Italy. The Italian health services have never been particularly distinguished in spite of the fact that some eminent men have held posts in them. A large part of Italy has for years been exposed to malaria of a peculiarly pernicious kind. Experience has shown, according to Dr. Frederick Russell, Professor of Preventive Medicine at Harvard, that repeated infections with malaria in endemic areas, such as Southern and Central Italy, produce a weakened population.

Malaria in Southern Italy
Not only is the health of the community at a low level, but the economic condition of the people is depressed. Much of the Southern Italian population is involved in a vicious circle of disease, undernutrition, poor economic status, poor education, and a hopeless outlook for the future. With better public health in Italy the whole course of the Italian war effort might have been different.

There is nothing new about the idea because the degeneration of classical Greece has been universally attributed to the invasion of the country by malaria about the fifth century B. C. The Greeks knew nothing about malaria but today malaria and its control is well understood, and if the Italians had used all the knowledge available they could have controlled the greater part of it, just as it has been done in this country, where malaria used to be endemic all over the Mississippi Valley.

Our health problems are not all solved by any means. With the return of soldiers and sailors some of them incapacitated either by injury or disease, some of them in mental states that are far from cooperative, we have a real job to do to get them back into condition so they will be healthy, able and self-respecting with abilities to be self-supporting. All the resources of social medicine will be necessary for the successful accomplishment of this task.

For Wednesday, November 1

OUTSTANDING success, with worthwhile progress and achievement, is indicated by the ruling planetary configuration of this day. There is a sign of increase and expansion in all departments of life, with credit, finance, labor and the most cherished of hopes and wishes reaching high goals of performance.

There may be some tricky conditions, calling for alert, wary and clever manipulation, probably by unique, subtle or intriguing tactics. In romantic adventures there may be surprising or menacing circumstances.

Those whose birthday it is may have the benefit of excellent promises for a year of exceptional progress, promotion, prestige and popularity in a business, financial, professional and all-round productive way, although there is need for swift and subtle action in dangerous spots of treachery, misrepresentation and perhaps fraud. If such is met with sagacity, vigilance, cleverness and expedient change of plans, cherished ambitions and objectives may be spectacularly attained. In social, domestic or romantic affiliations, while there may be pleasant and joyous activities, yet discretion and circumspect behavior are enjoined.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

Nicky suggested eagerly, "You've got the address wrong. You'd better hurry along, too. Hadn't you, Lieutenant? I mean if someone in the neighborhood has been murdered or—anything like that—and they want you—"

The officer looked at Nicky who stopped suddenly. The Lieutenant had narrow, gray-green eyes, narrow high cheekbones and an expression of complete taciturnity. He said, "I took the message myself. It was a woman's voice. There's no mistake."

"A woman!" exclaimed Nicky. "But..." He stopped and flapped his small hands helplessly. "But he wasn't murdered!"

Dr. Chivery stepped forward. "I agree to that, Lieutenant. I'm going to give the death certificate, and I have no question at all in my mind. Remember, he was my patient."

There was a sharp silence except, from the hall, Bevens could be heard evicting the servants clustered there from their observation post. "You'll be called if necessary," he said. "Now get along..." Bevens himself remained, however, hovering in the hall and in all probability straining his ears out of all nature.

The Lieutenant remarked quietly, "If you'll permit..." stepped to the sofa, and looked down at Conrad Brent.

I don't mind saying I was nervous. In the course of a not uncheckered career I have chanced to see a little of the scope and persistence of a police investigation. In this case they had been called by telephone, so whoever had summoned them must have had reason to believe it was murder.

Everybody was watching the Lieutenant when he turned at last to Alexia and said, "I'm sorry, Madam. We shall spare your feelings in every possible way; we'll do our best to protect you from annoyance. If Mr. Brent wasn't murdered, we can soon satisfy ourselves and you in that respect. If he was..."

"But he couldn't have been!" cried Alexia angrily. Then all at once her rigid, masklike face softened. She went quickly and gracefully to the Lieutenant and put her white hands on his arm; leaning very close to him and lifting her beautiful face beseechingly, she declared softly, "Lieutenant, no one would have murdered my husband. It is impossible..."

The officer detached himself without effort and compunction. "Will you please leave the room to us now?" he said politely. "All of you, except Dr. Chivery."

"But I..." Alexia's voice was no longer soft. Her small face was set and the gleam in her eyes was not pleasant. Maud was watching every move and every look and had said nothing.

The Lieutenant interrupted Alexia coolly. "We'll have to have an autopsy, Dr. Chivery," he said.

"I'll send to Nettleton for the medical examiner; he should be here in an hour. He'll assist you in making the autopsy."

Dr. Chivery looked at the buttons on the police officer's coat. "Conrad had a bad heart. He'd had it for years. He took digitals for heart attacks, and we'll probably find some. But not a fatal amount and..."

Maud interrupted. "But that was the point! What about the medicine? Where is it? If it was removed—if he removed it himself, that is—as I was saying when the police arrived."

Well, it wasn't quite what she was saying. She was saying that if it had been intentionally removed, that was tantamount to murder.

"What's this about digitals?" demanded the Lieutenant, falling upon it like a dog upon a bone and Claud Chivery, helplessly, explained. The medicine had been kept in the top drawer of the desk; it wasn't about the body of Conrad Brent, and he might have died for lack of it.

But that didn't prove that anyone had removed it with that result in mind. The Lieutenant didn't say that, he only asked if anyone had removed it or knew of Conrad Brent himself removing it.

"It was in the drawer just after dinner tonight," volunteered Alexia suddenly. "I saw it."

"Did you give it to Mr. Brent?" asked the Lieutenant.

"No. He was not ill then; he didn't want it. We were having coffee here. He wanted a clipping, something about the war that he'd cut from the papers. It was in that drawer and I got it for him; and I saw the medicine, then."

"I remember," said Peter Huber. "He read it to us."

Maud's black eyebrows were pinched together. "I remember, too. It was about the arrest of some enemy aliens, some Bund members."

No one had seen it since, however, or if so did not admit it. I got to thinking of the autopsy and wondering if whatever Drue had given him (some kind of stimulant certainly) by way of the hypodermic would show up in the blood stream. I stopped thinking along that line when the Lieutenant abruptly told us we could go. "Get some rest if you can," he said. "The things we have to do will take time. I'll have to question you later."

I started quickly toward the door. I had to see Drue as soon as I could. But Nicky got there first and then turned back toward Alexia. "Come, darling," he said in a voice of sudden sympathy, which reminded everyone that Alexia was a recently—indeed, a very recently—bereaved widow. Even Alexia looked a little startled and then instantly drooped against the arm he put around her. "If they insist upon this investigation, we'll have to make the best of it."

Alexia looked at the still figure on the couch. I thought she was going to approach it, to say a kind of farewell perhaps, but she didn't. Her shadowing lashes fell softly over her eyes and she turned toward the door, leaning on Nicky's arm. She said softly, musically, "I am stunned, I think—the shock. Yes, I'll go now. Nicky..." She leaned on his arm as far as the stairway, for I watched them go. I would have followed instantly, but the Lieutenant stopped me.

"You were here when he died, Nurse?"

"He was dead when I reached him." Maud was leaving too, and Peter Huber, looking uncertain of his status in that house of tragedy—followed her. Anna had disappeared. I didn't know where. There were left only the police, the Lieutenant, Dr. Chivery and me in that room. And the corpse delict.

"Wait a minute, please, Nurse," said the Lieutenant sharply as I made another move toward the door. "I want to talk to you. Did you telephone for the police?"

He had asked that before; presumably he was asking it again because, the family being now out of earshot, I might be willing to admit suspicion and the reason for it.

"Certainly not. If I had, I'd have told you so. This is nothing to me, any of it. I'm a nurse here. I arrived yesterday afternoon. I..."

"Yes, I know," he said. "You and Miss Drue Cable, who was formerly married to Craig Brent. I caught my breath so hard that I nearly choked myself trying to conceal it."

"They were divorced last year. You were the first to find Mr. Brent, is that right?"

Dr. Chivery passed his hand over his forehead and I said cautiously, "It's as I told you. He was dead when I reached him."

"Yes, I know," said the Lieutenant. "But how did you happen to find him? You were upstairs in your patient's room, weren't you?"

I had seen it coming but was still unprepared and it put me on what I believe is called the spot. If Peter Huber hadn't seen Drue with me, leaning over Conrad Brent—but he had. I said very carefully, "I thought I heard a kind of call of help. Miss Cable must have heard something, too. But we could do nothing for him. Then—then Peter Huber came running down the stairs, too. He had heard the same thing, I imagine. I sent him to telephone for the doctor."

"Why?"

"For the death certificate, naturally. Miss Cable went back up stairs to our patient. I was rather pleased with the implication of that. And I stayed here. But there was nothing I could do. And then all at once there was a loud noise."

Suddenly, I remembered that no one had inquired about that, yet almost certainly it was the thing that had roused Maud and Nicky and Alexia.

BREAK UP THAT SQUEEZE

DEFENDERS who understand the structure of squeeze plays are frequently in position to break them up by leading the suit which will destroy an entry required by the declarer into the dummy, or vice versa. Unless the player eschewing a squeeze has some kind of entry into the hand opposite him, he cannot possibly make a squeeze work if the defenders discard correctly.

Notice how different if West had understood his squeezes and had returned the club K to the fourth trick instead of the heart. Seeing that hearts could not furnish an entry to the dummy, but that the club A could, his club lead would have appeared obligatory to a star player. By thus destroying communication between the declarer's two holdings, he would have made a successful squeeze impossible.

Tomorrow's Problem

With all his honors, West didn't dare try to force his side into the position of becoming declarer at such a high level, without any knowledge at all of what his partner held in suit lengths. So he consoled himself with a double.

After scoring his diamond K, J and Q without having any of them ruffed, West led his heart K, feeling that there was the best chance to pick up the setting trick, by establishing his heart Q. But just see what that caused!

In case you'd like to know, I think she was awful. Tom Dewey was superb. Orson Welles got lost in histrionics, but Helen Gahagan Douglas was fine."

"I didn't care for Miss Gahagan at the Democratic national convention. She was metallic and uninteresting. But the other night her warmth of personality and sincerity showed itself over the air and was in great contrast to Clare's brittleness."

SOCIAL CALENDAR

A joint meeting of Chillicothe District of the Woman's Society of Christian Service and the Missionary Institute was held Tuesday in First Methodist church, of Lancaster. Mrs. Dwight Woodworth, of Ashville, was named as district president. Circleville W. S. C. S. members at the conference were: Mrs. G. H. Adkins, Miss Mattie Gearhart, Miss Ruth Stout, Mrs. F. L. Mangan, Mrs. Harold Pontius, Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer, Mrs. Harley Colwell, Mrs. F. E. Barnhill, Mrs. O. C. King, Mrs. George Welker, Mrs. C. C. McClure, Mrs. Luella Reichelderfer and Mrs. L. S. Lytle. An exceptionally fine program had been prepared. The morning session opened at 9:30 with Mrs. N. S. Welk, president of the district W. S. C. S., presiding, and conducting the annual election. Guest speakers during the morning were Miss Florence Palmer, missionary to India, and Mrs. J. H. Basden, director of Friendly Center and superintendent of Flower Esther Hall, Toledo. Each gave excellent talks on their respective work. Installation services were conducted by Dr. H. E. Bright, district superintendent.

During the afternoon program, an address on "Christ, After Chaos," was given by Dr. F. E. Whiteside, conference missionary secretary. The Rev. C. W. Swengel, pastor of the Logan church, described the available missionary literature; the district male quartet sang one song, and Dr. John Patterson, a missionary to India, spoke on "The Needs and Outlook for India." Dr. Patterson and his wife returned recently to this country after working in India a little over 24 years. He cited several instances showing the influence which letters from home have on the morale of our boys stationed there. He came back to this country on a troop ship on which were also several Hindus and Chinese, who were to fly airplanes back to India to help conquer our common enemy. The meeting was dismissed after benediction by Dr. Patterson in the Hindu language.

WHAT IS YOUR ANSWER?

To the Typical New Deal, C. I. O. Political Action Committee, Underwood smear campaign against Dr. Walter E. Brehm, our present Congressman. Of course the C. I. O. Political Action Committee wants Underwood instead of Brehm —

They Cannot Control Brehm

Who is this little man Underwood? He lives in Perry county and was a candidate for Prosecuting Attorney of that county in 1940. He was repudiated by his fellow citizens of Perry County. The people of Perry County thought he wasn't big enough for the job of Prosecuting Attorney, so he certainly isn't big enough for us to send to Congress.

As you did two years ago—

Have a Coca-Cola = Going our way?

... or meeting a comrade in Northwest Canada

Friendship comes easy to allies devoted to common causes and borders without guns. Have a "Coke", says the Yank sergeant to the Canadian mountie, and he's talking a lingo of friendship that both understand. That's the informal North American way to say Greetings, friend. It's the same informal way to put friends at ease in your own living room, too. From the Yukon to the Gulf, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes—a symbol of a friendly way to get along with folks.

HORSE RACING RETURNS TO SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 1.—Horse racing, blacked out by the war, returned to southern California for the first time since Pearl Harbor today as Hollywood park opened its gates for a 34-day season.

Despite uncertain weather there was every indication that 30,000 fans or more would be on hand by post time to see and cheer the revival of the turf sport.

Thirteen of the country's fastest sprinters were entered in the feature event of the day, the $10,000 premiere handicap at six furlongs.

The veteran stakes winner, Marriage, and the 3-year-old Appleknocker, both of the Coward-Dupuy stable, and C. S. Howard's Civil Code figured as early favorites. Other entries in the premiere field include Porter's Cap, Trace Heart, Blue Pennant, Ended, Pari-Bratz, Smacked, Bizzerte, Gold Mike and Comanche Peak.

ASHVILLE

Mrs. H. M. Rickey, of Russellville, Ohio, and Mrs. S. S. Roush, of Bentonville, Ohio, are visiting their sister, Mrs. C. E. Mahaffey.

Ashville students attending the Fall quarter at Ohio State are: Dawn J. Bucklem, Harry S. Fry, Edgar W. Hedges, Warren R. Hoffman, Oscar A. King, Charlotte H. Lively, Wilma A. Smith, and Ernest Winterhoff.

Sgt. Paul Nance, who is stationed in India, writes that he can see the Assam tea fields from his front door. It is difficult for those of us at home to realize the varied sights our boys and girls overseas see every day; things that most of us know only by reading or seeing an occasional news reel.

Over 100 members and guests attended the October meeting of the Ashville Community Club held Monday evening at the Lutheran church. After the dinner served by the ladies of the church, the following business was transacted: The club voted to contribute $60 to the Community War Chest, the club constitution and by-laws were amended to permit election of officers in January instead of March, and it was decided to dispense with the November and December meetings and to hold the next meeting in January in the United Brethren church. Following the business session, Dr. Walter L. Collins of the State Department of Education gave an interesting and inspiring address on his recent experiences as a major in the Allied Military Government in North Africa, Sardinia and Italy. The central theme of the address was the contrast between the totalitarian form of government in which the individual is of no importance except as he helps to perpetuate the government, and the democratic form of government in which the government exists only to protect the rights of its individual citizens.

Dr. Collins' ready wit, his fluent tongue, and his ability to relate his experiences and beliefs in an interesting manner, made his address one that was greatly enjoyed by all his hearers. Music for the meeting was furnished by Ellen Johnson, Billy Speakman and Jack Irwin.

Ashville — Scott Scothern, Charles W. Fortner, Hewitt Cromley, Claude Kraft, L. W. Fullen, J. M. Kaiserman and Edwin Irwin were visitors at Philo Lodge, Knights of Pythias, in Circleville Monday.

The annual chicken pie supper will be held at the Methodist church Thursday beginning at 5:00 p. m.

Ashville — The Ashville varsity easily defeated Darby Twp. in a practice basketball game played at Ashville Tuesday afternoon.

Ashville — Mrs. T. A. Boor has returned home from White Cross hospital where she underwent an operation for cataracts two weeks ago. Her surgeon, Dr. Morgan C. Davis, of Columbus, states that Mrs. Boor "is doing as well as can be expected."

Ashville — Ensign William Martin, who is being transferred to Boston where he will receive further schooling in Radar, spent Sunday and Monday with home folk.

Ashville — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young announce the birth Sunday of a daughter, Marty Lou. Weight 8 1/2 pounds.

Ashville — WEAPON OF FUTURE
NEW YORK—William R. Enyart, president of the National Aeronautic Association who recently arrived in the United States from England, bore rather a grim message about flying bombs. The robots, he said, "tend to make many present-day weapons of warfare obsolete and put a new face on war. The possibilities of the flying bomb," he added, "appear to be greater than any potential counter-measures."

BASEBALL DRAFT MEETING BEGINS IN CHICAGO, ILL.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 — Baseball's bargain sale — the annual draft meeting — opens this afternoon in the office of Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Packages carried off in this year's grab-bag festival are expected to be less in quantity and quality than usual, but a number of clubs harbor the belief that a "sleeper" may be found.

Teams are given the opportunity to make selections in reverse to the order in which they finished in the league standings, with the Philadelphia Phillies of the National League entitled to first choices and Washington of the American, the second.

Sixteen players were drafted by the major league clubs at a cost of $140,000 last year. Since this is the third war-time season, with both baseball and military drafts having drained the minors, pickings are expected to be slim.

Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox already has dismissed the current minor league timber with the remark: "There isn't a player outside the big leagues worth going across the street to see."

The draft price tag for double AA players is $7,500; for A-1 or A ballplayers, $6,000; class B, $4,000, and class C, $2,500. There are 589 active players eligible for the draft. As many more are on the national defense and voluntarily retired lists. These can be drafted at the club's own risk.

Commissioner Landis will be absent from the draft deliberations over which he customarily presides. He is hospitalized because of illness.

ISBELL SEEKS PLAYERS
LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 1.—The Purdue Boilermakers called for a wholesale reconstruction job today because of serious depletion by V-12 transfers and injuries. Six of the eight men who normally constitute the first two backfield combinations were absent and Coach Cecil Isbell desperately was looking for replacements with which to go into the game against Wisconsin at Lafayette Saturday.

ELEVEN SENIORS PLAY LAST GAME HERE ON FRIDAY

Homecoming And Dad's Day Program Finishes CHS Home Grid Schedule

Eleven seniors and a few juniors will be playing their last game of football on the Circleville high school field Friday night when the Tigers oppose Grove City in the annual homecoming and Dad's day contest.

Seniors making their last appearance here are Dave Walters, Bill Weller, James Dade, Robert Lovensheimer, James Wells, Dudley Coffland, George Towers, Dick Shaw, Edward "Freck" Heath, Barton Deming and Joseph Anderson Jr. Wells has already passed his pre-induction physical examination for military service, but is expected to be able to finish the grid season.

Leon Sims, a junior, has passed his 18th birthday anniversary but has not been called for examination yet, although he expects it soon.

Dave Gillis, another junior, will complete his high school play Friday. He reports next week for military service.

Following the game Friday all members of the Circleville squad will get a big treat Saturday. The Tigers, regulars and substitutes, will be guests of Circleville business men at the Indiana-Ohio State game, expected to be one of the best seen in the stadium all season.

Sims was about the only "cripple" left Wednesday as the Tigers began to wind up preparations for Friday's game. His leg still bothered him but Coach Roy Black hoped his ace quarterback would be ready for service Friday night. Other "cripples" were reported well on the road to recovery.

The contest promises to be another good game. The Grove City team has lost Jim Reibel, the boy who caused all kinds of trouble for the Tigers last season including a field goal which decided the game, but several of his teammates are back. The team has made a good showing against stiff competition this season.

SINGING WALL HELPS

A false accusation of murder and a thrilling hunt for proof of innocence provide the excitement in "The Singing Walls," a "Suspense" story starring Van Johnson, on Thursday. A detective, related to the accused man, conducts an investigation, and finds an important clue in the form of a wall which seems to produce music.

COMICS GO TO DOGS

Still eyeing business possibilities with a thought to post-war plans Bud Abbott and Lou Costello bark up a new tree and take a scratch at breeding pedigreed canines, in their comedy broadcast Thursday. With fear and trembling in his heart and dog barks in his pocket, Lou takes Bud's advice and unleashes part of his $75 bankroll then learns that he has pulled a boner, when business starts going to the dogs.

COMIC ANALYZES VOTES

Jimmy Durante, the people's choice for a padded cell, gives Garry Moore his expert opinion on politics a few days before election, Friday. Durante asserts he is not interested in the left wing or the right wing. "All I want," he says, "is the white meat." Between laughs there'll be music by Georgia Gibbs and Roy Bargy's orchestra.

RADIO NEWS NOTES

Readers of "Down Beat," the music magazine which caters almost exclusively to the devotees of swing, have something to look forward to in the next issue, when Guy Lombardo and his orchestra will be featured in an article titled "Down Beat Makes Peace With Lombardo." The story marks a complete change in the magazine's policy, which in the past has not taken the sweet bands seriously.

Though Hildegard has't appeared in Paris for several years, she is still remembered there. A Free French sailor sitting in the Stork Club in New York last week spied the chanteuse, who was there as chaperone for the "Blind Date" party, and rushed to her table. In excited French he told her how much she was missed in the City of Light and was overjoyed to learn she might return to France in May, 1945, to perform at Les Ambassadeurs.

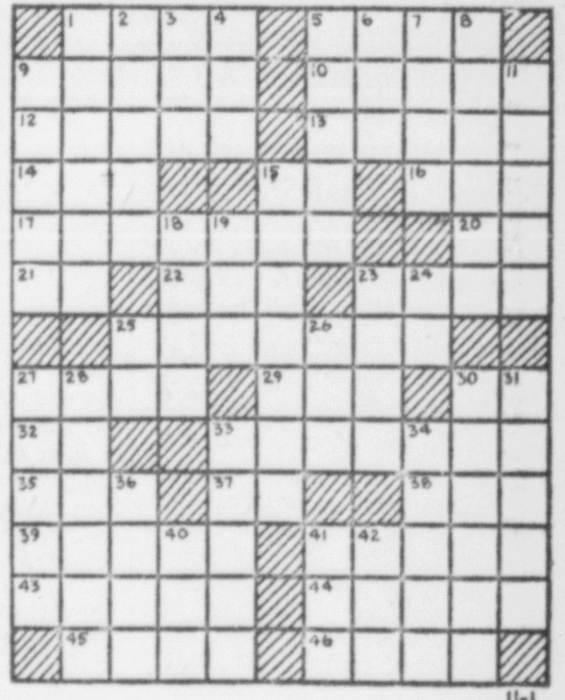

You'll never guess the name of the radio personality who, according to the latest Hooper reports, boasts the most female listeners per radio set. No, it's not Frank Sinatra. Bing Crosby or Herbert Marshall, nor Rudy Vallee, Victor Jory or Bob Hope--actually, the newest matinee idol of the air is Sammy Kaye. More female ears per set are tuned to his "Sunday Serenade" than any other show on the radio, says the survey.

Though it has been on the market only since Friday, October 27, several motion picture companies have already bid for rights to Ted Collins' "New York Murders," published by Duell, Sloan and Pearce.

Deercreek Township First To Meet Quota In War Fund Drive

HALF OF CITY'S SHARE OF $7,244 ALREADY RAISED

Committee Declares County Campaign Definitely To End November 4

Deercreek township is the first district to meet its quota in the War Fund drive.

Trustees of the Pickaway county Community War Chest announced Wednesday that the Deercreek district had already "gone over the top" in the county campaign.

In taking first honors in the current drive Deercreek repeated its performance in the last Community War Chest campaign. Deercreek's quota, including Williamsport, was $1,265.

H. W. Campbell was chairman of the township. Assisting him were: Earl Baker, Gordon Rihl, Charles Rose, Clark Smith, Galen Carter, Russell Wardell, Lawrence Ater, Mrs. John H. Dunlap Jr., Mrs. Florence West, Mrs. Estelle Johnson, Mrs. Ruth Keller, S. B. Metzger, J. W. Smith, Lee Luellen and C. W. Hays.

More than half of the Circleville quota was met during the first week of the drive, reports from the various chairmen of the city groups showed.

Leading in the Circleville drive to raise $7,244 was the business district, with Mrs. William Radcliff as chairman. The district has turned in $1,500.

Good reports also were received from Monroe and Perry townships.

Trustees Wednesday declared that the 1944 drive definitely will come to a close on the date originally announced as the deadline for the campaign. This will be midnight on Saturday, November 4.

LOCAL STORE MANAGER HEARS BROTHER KILLED

Harry E. Graef, manager of the Circleville Firestone store, has been informed his brother, Lt. Robert S. Graef, 30, Piqua, was killed in action in Holland October 12.

Lt. Graef was serving with the glider infantry. A recent issue of "Yank" magazine featured him, telling about him leading his unit in three bayonet charges against the Germans.

He went overseas as a staff sergeant and was commissioned in the field.

His wife and mother, Mrs. Frank E. Graef, reside in Piqua.

Lt. Graef was an interior decorator in civilian life and had planned to come to Circleville after the war.

SIGNS OF IMPENDING PEACE
MOSCOW — Leading Russian architects have been ordered to begin work on appropriate decorations for dozens of large squares in the capital on V-Day. The government also has decided to restore harmonica production to pre-war levels in the Kirov region, where 12 harmonica plants flourished before the war.

HARD FIGHT AHEAD
JERSEY CITY, N. J.—Addressing students of John Marshall College, Lieut. Gen. Alexander A. Vandergrift, commandant of the U. S. Marine Corps, urged American educators to campaign against a return to isolationist policies when the lessons of the war grow dim. The hardest fighting of the conflict lies ahead in the Pacific, he warned.
